BULLETIN OF THE ROTARY CLUB OF BOMBAY

From the President's Desk

am writing this editorial sitting amidst the mystic music coming from the sound of wind blowing leaves from trees planted all over the place in this beautiful country -Bhutan.

It's been decades since Bhutan came up with the concept of gross national happiness (GNH). Coined by the former king of Bhutan, the term GNH implied on giving equal importance to non-economic aspects of human wellbeing in sustainable development of the nation. Today, GNH has become Bhutan's greatest export to the world. Certainly, Bhutan ranks on the top of the chart as one of the happiest nations across the globe. So, what is it that makes Bhutan one of the happiest countries?

Having spent the last few days in this beautiful land, I have realized that preserving the gift of nature given to them is so critical to the people of Bhutan that they do not get swayed by the lure of luxury and comfort that comes with a lot of developmental pitches. Where else would you have 1,08,000 trees planted in honour of the birth of a prince? At other places such an event would lead to an extravagant celebration. In Bhutan, 60 per cent of the land is under the forest cover. No wonder Bhutan is one of the few carbon negative countries in the world, probably the only one. People here actually breathe fresh air.

People are satisfied and content with their lives. They prefer living a life which is closer to their roots, less materialistic yet more fulfilling. This does not however mean that people here do not support technological and infrastructure development. They believe in imbibing good practices from across the globe and using them for the betterment of Bhutan. I have seen a lot of senior bureaucrats, top executives in Bhutan who have impressive educational credentials, return to their country to meaningfully contribute towards its development. Clearly, happiness is more important to them than money.

Rotary is already doing the wonderful job of spreading happiness in the lives of people through its initiatives in education and healthcare. Our environmental committee could come up with ways to protect our forests and reduce our own carbon footprint.

Mumbai, Reconnected

espite Mumbai's intricate and seemingly wellconnected public transportation, our city is often missing from top 10 international rankings of public transport systems. In fact, studies show that the average Mumbaikar using the suburban railway spends one and a half hours commuting from their homes to work every single day. So, how do we solve this problem and eventually spend less time travelling, and more time increasing overall productivity levels?

Ashwini Bhide, an IAS Officer and the Mumbai Metro Rail Corporation's Managing Director, believes she may have the answer. In a speech delivered to the Rotary Club of Bombay on Tuesday 7th March, Bhide described Mumbai's Metro Three project, a 173 kilometre, mostly underground subway-like structure that connects the city's prime regions, and named it the city's "next lifeline."

Part of "Mumbai's master plan", established in 2004, the Metro Three is one of nine corridors that builds an interconnected system of metro lines throughout major business areas in the city. With the deadline to inaugurate all nine corridors fast approaching, Bhide explains that all the parties involved are hoping to "complete as many as possible in the next five to seven years."

Many may ask why such an infrastructural development is necessary when Mumbai already has one of the best linked train networks in the country. However, Bhide highlights a few of the issues with our current rail structure. Firstly, the Central, Harbour, and Western lines are laid out as "vertical perspectives, from north to south," and do not have enough effective links horizontally, from East to West. Moreover, the average railway user is forced to transit a further "two to five kilometres once they exit a station in order to reach their desired destination", lacking a "doorstep" system, in which a railway station is located within walking distance to their home or workplace. And finally, a burgeoning estimate of "twelve million passengers travel via railway" daily, despite the fact that the trains' capacities remain much lower.

These issues all lead to a tragic 3,500 deaths annually on public transport, mostly due to trespassing and overcrowding. Therefore, "there is no option - the metro project is a compulsion," said Bhide.

Compelling Mumbai's corporations and governmental bodies, and even international parties, to work together with regard to the financial, environmental, and social aspects of this project, the new transportation system will be a force for positive infrastructural change due to the effort of the numerous and diverse groups involved, especially when considering its features. Some of the development's components include: "serving 6 centralised business districts, interchanging with the existing system, advanced safety and security features, and 24/7 continuous security surveillance."

Ultimately, the Metro project is expected to lead to a "35% reduction in road traffic, decrease in fuel consumption, creation of business opportunities, and an improvement in our citizens' economic productivity."

However, most importantly, Bhide affirmed that it will "reposition Mumbai" as a metro-city to be reckoned with, and help it gain the worldwide competitiveness that it once boasted due to its effective, efficient, and unparalleled public transportation system.

Sports Committee - 2nd Annual Football Tournament

he Second Annual Football Tournament, held on Saturday 4th March 2017, at the NSCI was another successful offering from the Sports Committee.

The Akshaya Patra Foundation-Feeding a hungry Child is not a Charity, It's our Social Responsibility- 100% exemption

We are nearly into March and perhaps, you may have some CSR budget left unutilized.

A contribution to Akshaya Patra entitles you to a 100% tax exemption under Sec 35 AC of the IT Act. This benefit is being withdrawn for all NGOs wef April 1, 2017. So, it would be beneficial to make your contribution before March 31st.

It costs just Rs 950 to feed a midday meal for a whole year to a government school child. We would be most happy to accept that amount - whether it is to feed a 100, 1000 or 10,000 children.

We would provide you a list of schools from a choice of 10 states for you to select. And a Utilization Certificate for the donation given.

So, when you contribute to Akshaya Patra, you are not only complying with CSR provisions of Companies act, but you also get a 100% tax exemption.

Looking forward to hearing from you.

AKSHAYA PATRA

HUNGER SHOULD NOT STOP THEM FROM DOING WELL IN ACADEMICS.

You remember that time in school when you'd be so hungry that you'd wait for the break to open your lunch box.

Millions of children out there are not so lucky. At times, the mid-day meal is the only meal many of them have throughout the day.

Akshaya Patra serves mid-day meals to more than 1.5 million children across ten states in India. Our mission to reach 5 million children by 2020.

Your participation will help us in our mission. More importantly, in doing so you will gift them their childhood and a bright future.

We need you by our side in our battle against classroom hunger.

NEXT WEEK'S SPEAKER

Parveen Pardeshi

n his capacity as Principal Secretary, Forests, Government of Maharashtra, Praveen Pardeshi has established, beyond any doubt, that it is possible to enjoin the apparently disparate objectives of environmental protection and development.

In recognition of the dramatic transformation he has brought about in wildlife conservation in Maharashtra, he and the state government were presented with the Sanctuary Wind Under the Wings Award 2011.
